The European Center for Peace and Development (ECPD) University of Peace established by the United Nations, a unique international educational and research institution in this part of Europe, has been actively involved in the issues of human security, reconciliation and tolerance as preconditions for stable peace and sustainable development in the Balkans for a long period. Namely, in the late 1990s, ECPD launched an important regional educational and research project "The Balkans in the 21st Century", which resulted in the elaboration of numerous educational programmes and research projects. Within the framework of this project ECPD has been organizing for eleven years the Standing International Conference on Reconciliation, Tolerance and Human Security in the Balkans.
